Melissa Berrier

Degree: Landscape/Nursery Technology
(now Ornamental Horticulture)

Hometown: Mifflin

Gaining hands-on experience was important to Melissa. She said, “At Penn College, you don’t just learn through textbooks and lectures, you have the opportunity to get outside the classroom, get your hands dirty and experience it.”

“With more than 100,000 square feet of indoor institutional laboratories and classrooms and over 350 acres of outdoor “learning labs,” the School of Natural Resources Management offers students ample space for learning while keeping class sizes small for individualized instruction. Take a look . . . and see what opportunities we can offer you.”

Dr. Mary Sullivan
Dean, School of Natural Resources Management

Penn College is a special mission affiliate of Penn State, committed to applied technology education.

More than 6,500 students are enrolled in bachelor-degree, associate-degree, and certificate majors representing more than 100 career areas. Small classes, hands-on learning, industry-standard equipment, and faculty with real-world work experience contribute to Penn College's excellent graduate-placement rates.

Business and industry connections play a vital role in students' success in the workplace and position Penn College as a leader in higher education and workforce development.
